THEIR NEED

I.E.P. of Newark was awarded a grant to provide educational services for three and four-year olds in struggling neighborhoods of central Newark. A failed project would be rejected by the neighborhood. Both cost and timing were a factor. Tight city budgets and local politics could shut the project down. The beginning of the school year was also looming. Due to its location in a tough neighborhood - the building needed to be durable and easy to maintain.

OUR SOLUTION

The organization contacted I-R Mobile Modular to manage the project and find a builder. Due to the complexity and time frame involved, I-R knew that Whitley Mfg. was the perfect choice for the project. When ground was broken for the foundation in spring, construction was already well under way and nearing completion off-site at Whitley's Indiana facility. In early September, Market was opened to the public. The community views the building as a touchstone, a sign of rebirth and a source of pride. The project came in under budget as well.
